FIVE ARRESTS ARE MADE ON RUM CHARGES

Thirty-nine Bottles of Whiskey Found by Deputy Sheriffs On Seymour Farm

Sheriff Frank Davis and his deputies were busy over the week end in making five arrests on liquor charges.

Their outstanding accomplishment was the finding of 39 half pints of whiskey on the farm of Wilson "Pete" Seymour on the Jackson pike in Scioto-twp.

Seymour, whose farm is said to have been unsuccessfully raided about a dozen times previously, claimed to have boasted of his prowess in foiling law officers, according to Deputy Sheriff John Ward, Jr.

Saturday at midnight Deputy Sheriffs Ward, Porter and Fissel visited the farm, on which Seymour operates a fertilizer plant, and started an intensive search of his 200 acre farm.

FINED $150 AND COSTS

Three hours later, in a 10-acre alfalfa field, they found the 39 bottles of whiskey in a sack. Two hundred empty bottles were also found.

Seymour pleaded guilty when arraigned before Judge E. A. Brown Monday morning and was fined $150 and costs which he paid. Sheriff Davis warned him that if he was arrested again on a liquor charge he would be taken before the federal court at Columbus.

J. C. Hamilton, a truck driver for the carnival company which was showing at Chillicothe last week and which opens this week in Columbus is in the Pickaway-co jail awaiting a hearing on a charge of driving while intoxicated

TRUCK IS WRECKED

Hamilton, his wife and Roy Liebe, the latter two charged with drunkeness, were arrested by Sheriff Davis and Deputy Sheriff Carl Porter Sunday noon after their truck, loaded with carnival equipment, was wrecked on the Scioto Trail, five miles north of Circleville.

After Scott Crawford, 45, of Darbyville, is alleged to have gone on a drunken rampage Sunday afternoon during which he threatened persons with a brandished razor and knocked down his wife, he was arrested by Deputy sheriff's Ward and Fissell. He will be given a hearing before Judge E. A. Brown.

TORCH MURDER AGAIN FOUND

Flame Seared Body of Girl Provides Another Mystery of Fiendish Crime.

SCARSDALE, N. Y., April 29. The leering, hideous spectre of another "torch murderer" baffled detectives today as they sought not only to apprehend the fiend who strangled and cremated a young woman under a blossoming apple tree on the outskirts of this city, but also to establish the identity of the victim whose body was charred beyond recognition.

Seared fragments of a flowered cretonne house-dress, milk bottle reeking with the odor of kerosenen, a pair of snake-skin slippers and dental bridgework in the girl's mouth—these constituted the articulated patchwork of slender clues out of which police hope to bring to justice the perpetrator of the third outrage in a year in which a human has been made a funeral pyre.

The body was found late Saturday by Joseph Selvey, a steam fitter's, helper.

A squad of detectives was hurriedly despatched to the scene and Medical Examiner Amos O. Squire immediately performed an autopsy on the pitifully scorched body. The examination disclosed that the girl had been strangled, before her slayer had transformed her body into a flaming, human torch.

Dr Squire, who has conducted hundreds of autopsies in Westchester county, was horrified at the condition of the girl's body. The victim, he said, was about 21 years old, 110 pounds in weight and about 5 feet 4 inches tall. She had reddish brown hair, blue eyes, small ears and a slightly turned up nose.

Higher-Ups Named in Suicide's Letter

United States Attorney Tuttle, left, made arrangements to quiz the suicide prompter on his part in the death of David Steinhardt, below, former influential lawyer of New York, who was wanted to answer charges of embezzlement in connection with the investigation of the Federal bankruptcy courts. Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow, right, resigned just as impeachment report proceedings were to be brought against him in congress for his alleged participation in the bankruptcy scandals. A 36-page statement mailed to Tuttle before Steinhardt's death is being made the basis of further investigation, even though it is not admissable as evidence.

Crime and Sex Movies Seen As Good Influence

NEW YORK, April 29.—Mothers need not fear the effect of crime and sex movies upon their sons and daughters, according to Dr. J. L. Holmes, eminent psychologist of Columbia university.

"The movies rarely lead young folks astray," Dr. Holmes declared today in announcing the results of tests on 500 school children taken from public and private schools throughout New York City and state.

The chief thing remembered by children after viewing films of this type, according to Dr. Holmes, "is that the villain always ends up in jail."

GRANDMOTHER GETS FINE FOR SEX PAMPHLET

New York Protest Meeting Called Against Finding On Educational Paper.

NEW YORK, April 29 --"Grandmother" Mary Ware Dennett, was fined $300 for sending her pamphlet "The Sex Side of Life" through the mails by Federal Judge Warren Burrows in Brooklyn today.

The maximum penalty for her conviction could have been five years in the federal penitentiary and a fine of $5,000. Previously Mrs. Dennett declared that in the event of only a fine by the Judge she would refuse to go to pay it and go to jail instead.

However, the question as to whether she should carry this Spartan-like resolution was deferred by Judge Burrows paroling the defendant in the custody of her counsel, Morris Ernst until next Thursday afternoon. At that time, Ernest said, papers in an appeal from the conviction will be filed.

PLAN TEST CASE

A meeting, at which prominent citizens will attend, was called for this afternoon to decide future action in connection with Mrs. Dennett's case. More than 100 physicians, clergymen, professors and lawyers have been invited. It is planned to send a copy of Mrs. Dennett's pamphlet, signed by those at the meeting, to President Hoover. This would make the senders subject to the same charge as Mrs. Dennett sending alleged obscene matter through the mail.

The pamphlet, which a federal jury termed obscene, was written 10 years ago for Mrs. Dennett's two sons. Since then it has become part of the educational instruction at the Y. M. C. A., the Union Theological Seminary and numerous schools throughout the country.

RADIO SCARES CONGRESSMEN

National Legislators Afraid of Having Their Proceedings Broadcast.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The proposal of Senator Dill (D) of Washington to install radio microphones in the senate and house has threatened one of the favorite indoor sports of congress—insertion of speeches in the Congressional Record for constituents to read but which are never delivered.

The scare is real, because members generally believe that the time is not far distant when the Dill proposal will be adopted.

The practice is defended by many members, who say congress would spend all its time talking if every speech in the Congressional Record had to be delivered on the floor.

"Certainly, broadcasting of congressional proceedings is coming in the future," observed Rep. Black (D) of New York, one of the humorists of the house.

"I hope it does kill a lot of speeches that now appear in the Record. Most of them ought not to be inserted. Some congressmen get someone to write their speeches, put them in the Record and then send them back home to prove they are real Daniel Websters.

"One thing is sure—a lot of these congressmen wouldn't get elected if the radio fans were checking up on them. My idea, however, is to have a radio forum in congress at night, say three times a week, then general subjects would be discussed."

Sisters Race In Plane to Reach Dad, Near Death

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., April 29.—Two sisters, Mrs. F. W. Casper and Miss Stella McCord, took off from here today in a plane for Des Moines, Iowa, in a desperate race against death to the bedside of their father, a prominent resident of Newton, Ia.

The two women, who were returning from Europe, were taken off the White Star liner Baltic at quarantine and rushed to Curtiss Field in an amphibian plane. Then they hurriedly boarded the ship that is to take them to Des Moines.

The sisters were notified by radio that their father was dying and arrangements were made by F. L. Maytag, a friend, to have them taken from the Baltic and rushed to the flying field. They expect to arrive in Des Moines late today.

BIG CANADIAN ACREAGE SOLD

Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Weil Visit Relatives After Large Land Deal.

Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Weil, of Lexington, Ky., were in the city Sunday enroute home from Calgary, Alberta. They were guests of her sisters, Mrs. Germain Joseph and Miss Bertha Weill and brother Harry E. Weill.

Mr. Weil sold 600 acres of a 1500 tract of land within a few miles of Calgary for $100,000. This land was purchased by the Weil family 19 years ago, and is located in the greatest wheat belt on the North American continent. Mr. Weil says that this territory which is in the foothills of the Rockies, extends clear to the arctic circle and enough wheat can be raised in this country to feed the world.

The variety is known as hard winter wheat and is exported to this country to St Paul and Minneapolis mills. Even after paying the duty of 42 cents a bushel for entry into this country, it is a profitable crop to wheat raisers of Canada.

Mr Weil sold the land to Mr McKinnon, a Scotchman who owns owns 100,000 acres in Alberta and Saskatchewan. The capital of Alberta is Edmondton, a city of forty thousand people during the winter this northernmost city of this province experiences a varying thermometer that registers from 30 to 60 degrees below in winter With all this severe cold, the people are healthy the climate seems not to bother them at all the summers are hot and people from all over the Dominion flock there to spend the heated term

SQUALLS LASH OHIO SUNDAY

Sabbath Storms Take Toll of One Dead and Several Injured In State.

Spasmodic squalls, of near-tornado intensity, lashed Ohio Sunday afternoon, leaving in their wake one person dead, several injured and much property damage. Little damage was reported in Pickaway-co.

Northern and central portions of the state bore the brunt of the cyclonic wind disturbances, which were accompanied by heavy rains.

John O'Brien, 14, was drowned in Lake Erie off Lakewood, when the wind overturned a boat in which he and three other persons were sailing. The other three were rescued.

Garages and porch roofs were destroyed in the village of Parma, near Cleveland, when the wind tore through that town.

At Newark, Miss Mary Owens, 25, of Utica, was badly cut by flying glass when the wind tore a limb from a tree and hurled it against the auto in which she was riding.

Two horses and 60 sheep were killed when the barn of Harry Hunt, on his farm, near Newark, collapsed under a squall. Another barn in the same vicinity, belonging to Ray Chilcote was demolished, killing a horse.

Hail accompanied the wind at Berea and some damage was reported. Thirty telephone poles were leveled along the Northfield-Akron road. Trees were uprooted at Chardon.

The boy had his skull crushed and his shoulder broken and is not expected to live.

BOOTH IS HONORED

LONDON, April 29.—King George today conferred the title of the Companion of Honor upon General Bramwell Booth, former head of the Salvation Army. General Booth was deposed at the meeting of the Salvation Army high council here in the spring after a bitter legal struggle but was allowed to retain his designation as "General."

Sisters Race In Plane to Reach Dad, Near Death

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., April 29.—Two sisters, Mrs. F. W. Casper and Miss Stella McCord, took off from here today in a plane for Des Moines, Iowa, in a desperate race against death to the bedside of their father, a prominent resident of Newton, Ia.

The two women, who were returning from Europe, were taken off the White Star liner Baltic at quarantine and rushed to Curtiss Field in an amphibian plane. Then they hurriedly boarded the ship that is to take them to Des Moines.

The sisters were notified by radio that their father was dying and arrangements were made by F. L. Maytag, a friend, to have them taken from the Baltic and rushed to the flying field. They expect to arrive in Des Moines late today.

BIG CANADIAN ACREAGE SOLD

Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Weil Visit Relatives After Large Land Deal.

Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Weil, of Lexington, Ky., were in the city Sunday enroute home from Calgary, Alberta. They were guests of her sisters, Mrs. Germain Joseph and Miss Bertha Weill and brother Harry E. Weill.

Mr. Weil sold 600 acres of a 1500 tract of land within a few miles of Calgary for $100,000. This land was purchased by the Weil family 19 years ago, and is located in the greatest wheat belt on the North American continent. Mr. Weil says that this territory, which is in the foothills of the Rockies, extends clear to the arctic circle and enough wheat can be raised in this country to feed the world.

The variety is known as hard winter wheat and is exported to this country to St. Paul and Minneapolis mills. Even after paying the duty of 42 cents a bushel for entry into this country, it is a profitable crop to wheat raisers of Canada.

Mr. Weil sold the land to Mr. McKinnon, a Scotchman, who owns owns 100,000 acres in Alberta and Saskatchewan. The capital of Alberta is Edmondton, a city of forty thousand people, during the winter this northernmost city of this province experiences a varying thermometer that registers from 30 to 60 degrees below in winter. With all this severe cold, the people are healthy, the climate seems not to bother them at all, the summers are ideal and people from all over the Dominion flock there to spend the heated term.

INFANT CHILD DIES

The body of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Campbell, colored, 601 S. Washington-st, died shortly after birth, Monday, was interred in Forest cemetery Monday by the Albaugh Co.

SQUALLS LASH OHIO SUNDAY

Sabbath Storms Take Toll of One Dead and Several Injured In State.

Spasmodic squalls, of near-tornado intensity, lashed Ohio Sunday afternoon, leaving in their wake one person dead, several injured and much property damage. Little damage was reported in Pickaway-co.

Northern and central portions of the state bore the brunt of the cyclonic wind disturbances, which were accompanied by heavy rains.

John O'Brien, 14, was drowned in Lake Erie off Lakewood, when the wind overturned a boat in which he and three other persons were sailing. The other three were rescued.

Garages and porch roofs were destroyed in the village of Parma, near Cleveland, when the wind tore through that town.

At Newark, Miss Mary Owens, 25, of Utica, was badly cut by flying glass when the wind tore a limb from a tree and hurled it against the auto in which she was riding.

Two horses and 60 sheep were killed when the barn of Harry Hunt, on his farm, near Newark, collapsed under a squall. Another barn in the same vicinity, belonging to Ray Chilcote was demolished, killing a horse.

Hail accompanied the wind at Berea and some damage was reported. Thirty telephone poles were leveled along the Northfield-Akron road. Trees were uprooted at Chardon.

LONG ILLNESS ENDS SUNDAY

Mrs. Sarah Ellen Shupe died at her home in Stoutsville Sunday morning at 3 o'clock after a year's illness from a complication of diseases.

She was born near Stoutsville, the daughter of Jacob and Catherine Leist Hartranft. Her husband, Nelson Shupe, and two daughters, Mrs. Harley Pearce and Miss Ollie Shupe, and two grandchildren, Catherine and Marvene Shupe, survive.

The funeral services will be Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home, and will be in charge of Rev. Shealey. Burial in Maplehill cemetery, will be in charge of E. M. Crites, funeral director.

DIES AT STERLING

Mrs. Nancy James, 80, of Mt. Sterling, widow of John James, died Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Molly Fyles. Surviving also are another daughter, Mrs. Minnie White, and a son, Bert James of Waterloo. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday from the Waterloo M. E. church.

OHIO'S DEATH TOLL RISES TO 9 ON SABBATH

Crossing Accidents Play Large Part In Sunday Reaping of Tragedy.

Nine persons were killed and 14 injured in traffic accidents in Ohio over the week-end and the death total mounted to 23 killed and 26 injured as the result of two road crashes, one in Indiana and the other in New York. Five were killed in the Indiana tragedy and nine members of one family perished in the New York collision.

SPRINGFIELD, O., April 20.—The two children killed when a Big Four train struck the auto in which they were riding here last night were identified today as Francis Gatewood, 10, and his sister, Gladys, 12. They were riding in the machine of William Shelpman, 55, of Washington, C. H., who was severely injured. The accident occurred at the Main Street crossing. The Gatewoods live on a farm eight miles west of here.

CLEVELAND, April 29.—Cleveland's traffic toll for 1929 stood at 58 today following the deaths of John Styrranka, 55, and Jean Aquilla, 4, both of whom were run down by automobiles over the week-end.

CANTON, O., April 29—Homer Montague, 9, was killed and Bruce Richards, 47, Mrs. Frank Plotner, 58, and Vance N. Clark, 2, son of Attorney Norman Clark, were injured in four different traffic accidents here over the week-end.

GENOA, O., April 29—Kathleen Rudes, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Rudes of this city is dead here today as a result of having been hit by an automobile yesterday while crossing the street near her home by Walter Musolf, road contractor of Genoa.

DAYTON, O., April 21—John Sazbo, 22, was killed, and four other persons were slightly hurt, last night when the car in which the party was riding, skidded off the wet pavement as it attempted to pass another auto here.

MARTINS FERRY, O., April 29 Grant Jones, 56, farmer, died in Morristown, near here, today after being struck by an auto on the Flushing road near that village. Jones was found by gas station employes.

TOLEDO, O., April 29.—One man is dead, another is in a hospital here, and a third is under arrest as the result of an auto collision here yesterday. Joseph Slizis, 43, suffered fatal injuries, when his car was struck by another auto which failed to stop. Tony Lukzakowski, 34, passenger in the Slizis machine, suffered a broken leg. Trailing the fleeing car by a broken bumper, police arrested Valentine Golaszewski.

CHILLICOTHE, O., Apmil 29—When two motorists, whose car had struck a tree alongside a road, near here, flagged Alberta Hite, Portsmouth, the man in attempting to stop to render assistance, was injured when his car overturned and crashed into a ditch.

John Allen, 22, and Clarence Salisbury, both residing near here, were injured when their car struck a tree. They "flagged" Hite. His car, skidded, overturned and nosed into the ditch when he applied the brakes too suddenly.

COLUMBUS, O., April 29—Two Carey, Ohio residents, were injured here yesterday afternoon when their car skidded on a wet pavement, overturned three times and

GROCER IS KILLED IN CROSSING CRASH

LANCASTER, O., April 29.—Funeral services for E. F. Hummell, 46-year-old grocer of Royalton, near here, who was instantly killed at Hooker's station aSturday when his auto was struck by a Scioto Valley traction car, were held today at Royalton.

As the Hummell car approached the crossing at an extremely low rate of speed and as the vision of car line is good at this point, the theory is advanced that the driver was asleep.

AS A SPRING TONIC SPINAGO IS HARD TO BEAT

Tired and Worn Out Feeling Gone; Thanks To Spinago.

Mr. Samuel Thomas, age 70 years, who resides in Circleville, at 502 E. Mound St., was among the many persons of this city who has reaped the harvest of good health through the use of Spinago. It has been through his recommendation that many more local residents have started taking this wonderful new tonic. Mr. Thomas is a very enthusiastic supporter of this new wonder tonic, which is shown by the following statement made by him just after he had taken two bottles:

"For perhaps the last five years or more I have continually been suffering from rheumatic pains which at times became very acute indeed. During this whole time I tried one medicine after another from drug stores and doctors. The misery continued to grow worse.

"I had no appetite whatsoever, my body resistance was weakened and I was in a terrible run-down condition, feeling sleepy and tired practically at all times. After hearing of Spinago, and of what wonderful results of which my friends and neighbors were receiving, I decided to try this tonic as I was under no obligation, as it was guaranteed absolutely to me, to give satisfactory results or my money would be refunded immediately, on return of the empty bottle.

"One bottle did wonders for me. The second bottle did more good than all other medicines. My rheumatism pains are entirely gone. I feel better than I have ever felt for many a year. As for a spring tonic and appetizer Spinago is hard to beat."

Many people come to us every day telling us the merits of this wonderful medicine. Mr. Thomas is just one of the many.

SPINAGO is sold on an absolutely guaranteed basis, so it costs nothing to try it. The price is one dollar per bottle or five dollars for six bottles. And if one, two or six bottles do not produce the desired results, the money is cheerfully refunded. Why not try Spinago on this plan? You can't lose.—Adv.

Dr. Frank E. Lutz, curator of insects at the American Museum of Natural History, and Alfred L. At first the insect was quiet, but in a few minutes it began to clean its hind legs. Then the tube to the jar was cut, permitting an instantaneous drop to the pressure of the outside air.

"The cricket," says Doctor Lutz, "merely gave a little twitch as though some one had frightened it a bit."

The insect's next adventure was with compressed air. It was put into a tank analogous to caissons used in tunnel building. The pressure was quickly raised and then as suddenly reduced, a procedure no human being could have survived. But the valiant cricket paid less attention to these adventures than to the previous ones.

The following day Gryllus, as scientists call the cricket, was treated to a merry-go-round ride in a centrifuge that whirled at 1,200 revolutions a minute for ten minutes. When the machine stopped the cricket shook itself and chirped as if in thanks for the buggy ride.

Lead National League Teams By One Full Game After Three Weeks.

NEW YORK, April 29.—With two weeks of the budding season gone, the Boston Braves remain the big surprise of baseball. Termed the worst-looking outfit in the big leagues, they are still in first place in the National loop, a full game ahead of the Chicago Cubs.

Judge Emil Fuchs and his "kitchen cabinet" of ex-managers are enjoying a quiet laugh at the expense of experts who predicted that the club would fall to pieces because of too many bosses. The team has been getting good pitching and the doddering veterans on the club are knocking the cover off the ball. Four of their victories were gained at the expense of the hapless Brooklyn Dodgers, but they showed real strength in beating the Giants twice.

ATHLETICS BREAK EVEN

In the American league, the Philadelphia Athletics have scored a moral victory by breaking even in four games with the Yankees. They will not be burdened by any inferiority complex when they play the world's champions in Philadelphia today. Pennock, New York's pitching ace, has failed to show his old form while Lefty Grove has demonstrated that he can beat the Hugman, and these factors have done much to equalize the two teams.

Babe Ruth hit his second home run of the season as the Yankees downed the Senators yesterday, 7 to 2. It was one of the longest homers ever made at Washington. The Yankee steam-roller attack piled up a six-run lead for Waite Hoyt in the fifth inning.

The Red Sox lost to the Athletics, 7 to 3, in the first championship Sunday game ever played in Boston. Ed Rommel helped win his own game with a home run.

The smart and sprightly St. Louis Browns converted seven hits into six runs in beating Detroit, 6 to 3. The Brownies are still tied with the Athletics for first place.

CLEVELAND LOSES.

With Grady Adkins holding Cleveland to four hits, the White Sox chalked up their second straight win, 2 to 1.

Another four-hit game was turned in by Jess Petty, veteran southpaw obtained by Pittsburgh from Brooklyn. The Bucs trimmed St. Louis 6 to 2, after old Pete Alexander had been taken out for a pinch hitter.

Cincinnati outslugged the Cubs, 17 to 12, in an old-fashioned batting bee of 37 hits. Hack Wilson's two home runs featured.

Travis Jackson also clouted two homers as the Giants swamped the Phillies, 8 to 2. Rain washed out the second game of a scheduled double bill.

With Percy Jones on the mound, the Braves subdued Brooklyn, 5 to 2, in a six-inning affair.

ABLE "A" HELPERS

WILLIAMSPORT

John Bookwalter of Clarksburg, was in Williamsport, Wednesday.

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Samuel B. Metzger and Mrs. Frank B. Kibby entertained their bridge club at the home of the former. Spring flowers were used to decorate the spacious rooms for the occasion. Aside from the club members, a number of guests were present. Late in the afternoon a delightful lunch was served. Roses of Sharron in a near orchid shade, in crystal bud vases were used as the centerpiece at the small tables. There were seven tables of players.

The April meeting of the W. C. T. U. met on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. J. Brance Johnson. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. John J. Seaburn. Following the opening song the leader read from the Scripture and Mrs. John H. Dunlap offered prayer. Mrs. Edward Rinehart read "One Hundred Percent Americanism." Mrs. Lee Luellen read "A Study in a W. C. T. U. Center." The leader of the meeting, Mrs. William Heiskell, read, "America's Creed," together with response by the Union. Mrs. J. Brance Johnson sang in her always pleasing manner. At the close of the meeting delicious refreshments of ice cream, cake and coffee were served by the hostess and her assistants. About 35 were were present.

The Pythian Sisters of Heber Temple No. 478 held their annual inspection on Wednesday evening, April 17. The occasion proved to be a decided success in every respect. The initiatory work as exemplified by the corps of officers, was very highly praised by the inspecting officer, Mrs. Glick, deputy. Guests from Ashville, Circleville, Harrisburg and Orient were present. At the conclusion of the session, a delightful two course lunch was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. John Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dooley and little daughter Mary Ann of London, Mr. and Mrs. Voy J. Boots of Columbus, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Pontious and children Betty and Billy, of Union Grove, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Boots.

C. E. Hill was a Circleville visitor on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Hunsicker, Mrs. Ella Hornbeck and Mrs. Jennie Tipton were in Mt. Sterling on Friday afternoon.

The Loyal Temperance Legion met on Saturday afternoon at the Lemming home, South of Williamsport. About 25 were present. Frances Hill was program leader, and under her direction an interesting program was presented. During the social hour delicious refreshments of home-made ice cream and cakes were served.

Mrs. Vay J. Boots, of Columbus, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Boots.

The Junior-Senior banquet of the Williamsport high school will be held on Saturday evening, April 27. The Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. church will prepare the dinner.

T. L. Clark of near Sedalia, was a business visitor in Williamsport on Friday.

Mrs. Robert B. Anderson and Mrs. H. White Campbell were in Washington C. H. on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Edwin Bitzer and daughter, of near Chillicothe, visited with Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Morgan and family on Thursday.

The play "The New Minister," to be presented for the benefit of the Parent-Teachers' Association, will be staged on May 7, instead of on May 8, as was originally announced. The cast will be composed of the school faculty, school pupils and assisted by a number of others.

Clyde Tootle has returned to Williamsport after spending a few days with relatives near Clarksburg.

WILLIAMSPORT

John Bookwalter of Clarksburg, was in Williamsport, Wednesday.

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Samuel B. Metzger and Mrs. Frank B. Kibby entertained their bridge club at the home of the former. Spring flowers were used to decorate the spacious rooms for the occasion. Aside from the club members, a number of guests were present. Late in the afternoon a delightful lunch was served. Roses of Sharron in a near orchid shade, in crystal bud vases were used as the centerpiece at the small tables. There were seven tables of players.

The April meeting of the W. C. T. U. met on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. J. Brance Johnson. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. John J. Seaburn. Following the opening song the leader read from the Scripture and Mrs. John H. Dunlap offered prayer. Mrs. Edward Rinehart read "One Hundred Percent Americanism." Mrs. Lee Luellen read "A Study in a W. C. T. U. Center." The leader of the meeting, Mrs. William Heiskell, read, "America's Creed," together with response by the Union. Mrs. J. Brance Johnson sang in her always pleasing manner. At the close of the meeting delicious refreshments of ice cream, cake and coffee were served by the hostess and her assistants. About 35 were were present.

The Pythian Sisters of Heber Temple No. 478 held their annual inspection on Wednesday evening, April 17. The occasion proved to be a decided success in every respect. The initiatory work as exemplified by the corps of officers, was very highly praised by the inspecting officer, Mrs. Glick, deputy. Guests from Ashville, Circleville, Harrisburg and Orient were present. At the conclusion of the session, a delightful two course lunch was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. John Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dooley and little daughter Mary Ann of London, Mr. and Mrs. Voy J. Boots of Columbus, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Pontious and children Betty and Billy, of Union Grove, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Boots.

C. E. Hill was a Circleville visitor on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Hunsicker, Mrs. Ella Hornbeck and Mrs. Jennie Tipton were in Mt. Sterling on Friday afternoon.

The Loyal Temperance Legion met on Saturday afternoon at the Lemming home, South of Williamsport. About 25 were present. Frances Hill was program leader, and under her direction an interesting program was presented. During the social hour delicious refreshments of homemade ice cream and cakes were served.

Mrs. Vay J. Boots, of Columbus, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Boots.

The Junior-Senior banquet of the Williamsport high school will be held on Saturday evening, April 27. The Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. church will prepare the dinner.

T. L. Clark of near Sedalia, was a business visitor in Williamsport on Friday.

Mrs. Robert B. Anderson and Mrs. H. White Campbell were in Washington C. H. on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Edwin Bitzer and daughter, of near Chillicothe, visited with Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Morgan and family on Thursday.

The play "The New Minister," to be presented for the benefit of the Parent-Teachers' Association, will be staged on May 7, instead of on May 8, as was originally announced. The cast will be composed of the school faculty, school pupils and assisted by a number of others.

Clyde Tootle has returned to Williamsport after spending a few days with relatives near Clarksburg.

FINE WEATHER PROVIDED FOR CRUSADE WEEK

Co-operation of All Residents Is Asked In Cleaning-up Circleville.

Ideal weather was provided Monday for the inaugeration in Circleville of "Paint-Up and Clean-Up" week. A large force of city employes were engaged in removing rubbish and debris from the municipality's streets and alleys.

General cleaning of all premises this week is urged by Mayor B. T. Hedges, who says it is an inspiring sight to see everyone at work in sympathetic accord with the crusade for a brighter, cleaner and more beautiful city.

There was a time when men would not "fuss around" their homes to any considerable degree They felt it was all professional work which should be done by hired help. This is not so today. In every home and yard, you'll see men, women and children "on the job."

SONG OF CIVIC PRIDE

And there is a song on the air—the song of Civic Pride. Artisans, each an expert in his line, join this procession! The painter, the tinsmith, the plumber, the roofer, the interior decorator—hundreds of trained hands are making this crusade the very greatest in all the history of the movement.

Go "shopping" with this one idea in mind—of having readily accessible all those things which enter into keeping the home in apple-pie order, inside and out. For example, there should be a "paint-shelf" in every cellar, with brushes for various purposes. There should be turpentine and kalsomine and linseed oil and paints and enamels and varnishes. You'll need them when you least expect it.

The kitchen cupboard should have a plentiful supply of soaps and cleaning fluids and soap and scrubbing brushes and the wealth of material which science has provided for the specific use of the housewife to make her tasks easier. And for the grounds, there should be garden tools. The modern home has a tool chest which makes it possible for the "man of the house" to be of practical help, evry day in the year.

SHOP AT HOME

In this city we have a shopping district second to none, the country over. Our stores are well stocked and wisely operated. Courtesy awaits you everywhere as you enter the door.

But people have an odd way of never quite knowing the wonders of these diversified stores and the utilitarian things which are for sale there.

Get "better acquainted," for example, with these articles which have been designated for the American home to protect it and to make it more attractive, more liveable

There is no longer any excuse for any house to "run down" inside or out. Tools and materials for preventing this are always accessible, and at moderate prices. More and more, it is becoming the custom for home owners to pitch-in and do some of the many tasks themselves. It is better for the homes and it is better for the community .

LIFE AND GOOD HEALTH DEPEND ON THE LIVER

This Vital Organ Keeps Poisons from Getting Into the Blood Stream, Says Dr. Copeland, So Treat It Fairly—Eat the Proper Foods.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

YOUR poor old liver is a much-abused organ. It is called upon to take from your system great quantities of poisons, some of them perfectly natural and, in that sense, "proper." But unfortunately we are careless of our highest welfare and are inclined not to guard the liver against unnecessary demands upon its powers.

DR. COPELAND

An important part of the blood vessel system of the body, is a group of veins beginning in the lower intestine and bowel. The blood is carried from here into larger veins, all part of what is called the "portal system." In this way it reaches the liver.

The portal blood is filled with bacteria and poisons which have originated in the waste materials in the bowel. Of course, Nature has adopted wonderful protective measures and, under fairly normal conditions, will prevent the escape through the portal system of more such agents than the liver can destroy or modify without undue effort.

The liver is a laboratory where wonderful things are done. It is its function to "work over" the poisonous things and feed them into the general blood circulation so slowly, or so changed, that they do us no harm.

If it were not for this remarkable action, these poisons would get immediately into the general blood supply and life would be pretty doubtful. As it is, however, this much-abused liver does us a good turn many times a day. It is one of our best friends.

One of the faults of modern life is the consumption of foods that make for constipation and fermentation in the bowel. Germ action goes on and poisons are developed which are bad for us.

It is not well for us to overlook the evil effects of constipation. There can be no doubt that it is capable of doing us real harm. Except for the watchful care of the liver, in filtering out these poisons, we would certainly suffer far more than we do.

No longer do we talk of "biliousness" as our ancestors did, but it cannot be denied that many a person is hampered in his work by the neglect of intestinal cleanliness. The poor liver has been overworked in consequence and has failed to keep the overabundance of poisons from reaching the vital parts.

Headache is the most familiar symptom. Sickness at the stomach, sleepiness, unwillingness to work, loss of appetite, irritability, mental dullness, coated tongue, brown spots of the skin, unclean complexion, dark circles around the eyes—all these are signs of a neglected intestine or an overworked liver.

Each of us should be careful about the diet. Roughage to cleanse the intestinal walls, fruit and vegetables and proper eating habits generally, are essential for our general welfare.

Life depends on the liver!

Plain Facts About Investments

NEW YORK, April 29—The aggregate profits of 546 industrial corporations which have issued reports for the full year 1928 increased 22.7 per cent over 1927, according to a compilation made by the Standard Statistics company. Public utility earnings last year, on the basis of return from 43 leading companies, were 17 per cent greater than in the previous year.

All things being equal, this gratifying increase in earnings furnishes a basis and a background for a firm and substantial security market, both in equity stocks and in bonds and debentures of the corporations which are making industrial history. Hesitancy in the stock market at this time has its beginning in two principal factors—first, the rapid increase in stock prices over the last two years, which more than outstripped the improvement in business up to that time; second, the high money rates and the enormous flow of credit to the speculative markets.

The bond market is suffering from a somewhat similar malady, the high interest rates attracting funds that would nationally flow into bond channels, but there is something more serious than this in the bond situation. Thousands of investors have been drawn by the spectacular rise in stocks to a market about which they had comparatively little practical knowledge. When they had tasted the fruits of their speculative ventures, they quickly switched in their allegiance from bonds to stocks, and the deflection of this enormous volume of buying power from the bond market has thrown a wet blanket over the market.

In the last analysis, corporation earnings are the big factor behind the rise and fall of industrial and railroad stock mergers, consolidations, change of control and operation on big corporations and combinations have but one object in view, the increasing of the earning capacity concerned. No industrial head would consider taking over a company that would not contribute its part to the earning power of the new combination or, conversely, that would detract from its profitable operation. It is a case of earn your way or stay out.

That is the reason why the comparisons of corporation earnings cut such a big factor in stock and bond markets. The creditable performances of all the corporations in a geographical section or an industry reflects upon the purchasing power and the individual wealth of the people directly or indirectly affected.

According to the compilation from which quotation has already been made, omitting the traction company results, which are hardly comparable with those of the other utility companies, the remaining 37 prominent electric, gas, telephone and telegraph concerns had an 18 per cent gain in net earnings last year over the best previous year. The electric light and power companies alone registered a gain of 22.9 per cent. The increase in railroad earnings in 1928, as compared with the previous year, amounted to 12 per cent on the basis of reports from 42 companies.

* * *

Bulls in the public utility stocks and bonds base their optimism this year on the large increase in gross and net operating incomes of the light, power, communication and traction companies. These concerns which render a service to an ever-widening community of prosperous American people, have been fairly treated by the state supervisory boards and regulating bodies which have their interests, as well as those of the communities at heart.

Get in Step!

How wonderful it is that we, of this country, have been so universally responsive to the basic idea—and the civic idealism—back of the CLEAN UP-PAINT UP movement. Starting modestly enough, it has swept ever onward to complete success. Very few, indeed, there are, in America who do not "fall into line" in this procession of progress. The most humble can help. Everybody is needed and everybody can do an important share. The "DESIRE TO DO" is the first requisite—from the little home mother, who primps up her home garden, to the father who rolls up his sleeves and patches that broken fence. And the children, bless them, are equally enthusiastic. America will be, inevitably, the "Land of Beauty—of Beautiful Homes" as a direct result.

Plain Facts About Investments

NEW YORK, April 29—The aggregate profits of 546 industrial corporations which have issued reports for the full year 1928 increased 22.7 per cent over 1927, according to a compilation made by the Standard Statistics company. Public utility earnings last year, on the basis of return from 43 leading companies, were 17 per cent greater than in the previous year.

All things being equal, this gratifying increase in earnings furnishes a basis and a background for a firm and substantial security market, both in equity stocks and in bonds and debentures of the corporations which are making industrial history. Hesitancy in the stock market at this time has its beginning in two principal factors—first, the rapid increase in stock prices over the last two years, which more than outstripped the improvement in business up to that time; second, the high money rates and the enormous flow of credit to the speculative markets.

The bond market is suffering from a somewhat similar malady, the high interest rates attracting funds that would nationally flow into bond channels, but there is something more serious than this in the bond situation. Thousands of investors have been drawn by the spectacular rise in stocks to a market about which they had comparatively little practical knowledge. When they had tasted the fruits of their speculative ventures, they quickly switched in their allegiance from bonds to stocks, and the deflection of this enormous volume of buying power from the bond market has thrown a wet blanket over the market.

In the last analysis, corporation earnings are the big factor behind the rise and fall of industrial and railroad stock mergers, consolidations, change of control and operation on big corporations and combinations have but one object in view, the increasing of the earning capacity concerned. No industrial head would consider taking over a company that would not contribute its part to the earning power of the new combination or, conversely, that would detract from its profitable operation. It is a case of earn your way or stay out.

That is the reason why the comparisons of corporation earnings cut such a big factor in stock and bond markets. The creditable performances of all the corporations in a geographical section or an industry reflects upon the purchasing power and the individual wealth of the people directly or indirectly affected.

According to the compilation from which quotation has already been made, omitting the traction company results, which are hardly comparable with those of the other utility companies, the remaining 37 prominent electric, gas, telephone and telegraph concerns had an 18 per cent gain in net earnings last year over the best previous year. The electric light and power companies alone registered a gain of 22.9 per cent. The increase in railroad earnings in 1928, as compared with the previous year, amounted to 12 per cent on the basis of reports from 42 companies.

Bulls in the public utility stocks and bonds base their optimism this year on the large increase in gross and net operating incomes of the light, power, communication and traction companies. These concerns which render a service to an ever-widening community of prosperous American people, have been fairly treated by the state supervisory boards and regulating bodies which have their interests, as well as those of the communities at heart.

How wonderful it is that we, of this country, have been so universally responsive to the basic idea—and the civic idealism—back of the CLEAN UP-PAINT UP movement. Starting modestly enough, it has swept ever onward to complete success. Very few, indeed, there are, in America who do not "fall into line" in this procession of progress. The most humble can help. Everybody is needed and everybody can do an important share. The "DESIRE TO DO" is the first requisite—from the little home mother, who primps up her home garden, to the father who rolls up his sleeves and patches that broken fence. And the children, bless them, are equally enthusiastic. America will be, inevitably, the "Land of Beauty—of Beautiful Homes" as a direct result.

MR. STEVE SOBERDASH.

"After suffering for two years from stomach trouble, Konjola quickly and surely restored my health so that I feel like a different person," said Mr Steve Soberdash, 1622 Florence avenue, Youngstown.

"When I was nineteen years old I was extremely weak and lacking in strength and energy. I was unable to eat a meal without suffering intensely afterward from pains. This killed my appetite and I ate but very little Still I suffered from gas bloating and acidity of my stomach I experienced vomiting spells quite often.

"A friend recommended Konjola, and on his indorsement I decided to give it a trial. All my ailments vanished within eight weeks and have never returned. I have gained weight and am strong as any other young man I eat whatever is placed before me, relish the food and am properly nourished It is indeed a wonderful thing to be free of two years' suffering, and I owe it all to Konjola. # DIET VARIED DAILY IS ESSENTIAL TO HEALTH

Human Body Is Like a Machine, Says Dr. Copeland, Each Part Requiring a Certain "Fuel"—Lack of Iodine Foods May Lead to Goiter.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

IT is unfortunate that many persons fill their stomachs, satisfy their hunger and grow fat perhaps, but still are neglecting to get all the food they really need. Far too often we act as if quantity were the only factor to be considered.

Let us think about this for a moment. What would you think of the owner of an automobile who never bought oil for his car, but stopped at the filling station twice a day to get gasoline? You know the machine would rebel very quickly

Perhaps you remonstrate with him and, to "even things up," he quits buying gasoline, but fills the oil tank two or three times a day. Of course, the car won't run long.

The fact is that there must be a proper proportion of oil and gasoline. Both are essential to the continued operation of the car. It is necessary, too, to add water to the batteries There must be some of this, that and the other and enough of each of the essentials

If it is true of a mechanical device that it must have just the right quantity of several "foods," it is plain that the human machine must have an unfailing supply of every single food that each individual cell and fibre and organ requires. Without such a supply there will be trouble. Sooner or later there will be uncomfortable symptoms.

Perhaps I can illustrate what I have in mind by speaking about goiter. You know what that is—"thick neck," it is sometimes called.

In the neck, on each side of the "Adam's apple," are the parts of what is called the "thyroid gland" When this gets out of order, there may be enlargement of the organ and disturbance in the normal generation of its juices. Since this secretion has an important part to play in mental and physical activity, unless this organ operates normally, the afflicted individual is in danger.

It has been found that the absence of iodine may produce goiter If we do not take the foods which carry iodine and get that element in sufficient quantity, the trouble develops.

It is interesting that in countries or localities remote from the sea, goiter is much more likely to occur This fact drew attention to the use of fish as a possible means of escaping the disease. A chemical analysis of several varieties of fish revealed that iodine is found in sea fish and not in fish from fresh water.

Then tests were made to find out if canning or preserving the fish altered the iodine content. This was important, because it is not easy even with modern methods of refrigeration, to get salt water fish to these sections where goiter is prevalent

It was found, fortunately, that the preservative processes do not destroy the iodine Among the sources of iodine supply, therefore we have in the eating of sea fish one way to help overcome the dangers of goiter.

BIBLE THOUGHT

SUBMISSION TO GOD—I will bear the indignation of the Lord, because I have sinned against him, until he plead my cause, and execute judgement for me: He will bring me forth to the light, and I shall behold his righteousness.—Micah 7:9.

PRAYER—"O speak to reassure me, Thou Guardian of my soul."

ITALY WILL ARM

Says Premier Mussolini, speaking through his king:

"Conferences on disarmament have followed one another these last years. Noble projects have been tried, politicians and experts have met. But disarmament has remained until today only a generous hope contradicted by continual armaments in land, sea and air.

"As attempts so far tried have had no success, it is the duty of the state from now on to take measures for defense, to render the mother country powerful and therefore respected."

So Italy proposes to go ahead and build up a stronger armament. Mussolini can do it. He has an all-Fascist parliament. He holds the King in the hollow of his hand. The nation is bewitched and bulldozed.

What Italy will do with a bigger army and navy when she has them, Mussolini only knows. But Europe fears.

Other powers will arm further, if this senseless postponement of disarmament continues. Then there will be another World War.

And all because statesmen representing the civil powers and peaceful ideals of the nations will not go ahead and do what they know they should do, instead of leaving armament decisions to militarists and navalist—professional fighting men who naturally want all the fighting equipment they can get.

SMALLER MONEY

In a couple of months the governments new paper money will be in circulation. Billions of dollars will be wholesaled through the Federal Reserve banks and retailed through all the banks in their districts. Then they will replace the old money in the vaults, and dribble into circulation. As rapidly as the old banknotes now outstanding gravitate to the banks, they will be retired. In a few months we should be on a new currency basis.

The new bills are distinguishable mainly by their size. They are only two-thirds as large as the present paper money. Thus they conform to the bank notes of England and various other foreign countries—which to Americans have never looked like money. Fortunately the rich engraving and familiar portraits will make our new bank notes easily recognizable as currency, though some conservative souls may mistrust them at first.

Next, when will bank checks be reduced in size, and standardized?

Modern Canned Foods

Chemical preservatives are entirely unnecessary in canned foods if they are properly sterilized, and furthermore the addition of injurious preservatives or other substances to any food is prohibited by law. The preservation of canned foods is accomplished entirely through sterilization by heat, and sealing the product in an air-tight container. Artificial colors were formerly used in a few red fruits, but have been discontinued since the canners are now able to retain the natural color of the fruits without them.

Kiddies' Evening Story

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

A CAVE PARTY

Isn't it strange," said the grown-ups, "that the mountain top, over yonder, is covered with snow, but that very little is coming down here?

"Now and again just a few flakes come down, but along the mountain top there is a long ridge of snow."

Of course that was because old King Snow had not come out. The snowflakes that fell to the earth were some of the trimmings of the little dresses and suits worn by the Snowflake children which fell as they walked and played.

Most of them fell off as they were walking along on the mountain top, and only a few fell way down to the earth below the mountain.

They walked and walked until they reached a cave at the top of the mountain.

"Here is the cave owned by Judge Rock," said Mother Snow Drop.

"Is he a friend of ours?" asked the Snow Drop children.

"Ah," said Mother Snowflake, "we old mothers know so many more people than the children.

"That's because we've been around so much more," and the

"I'm So Solid and Strong."

Snowflake and Snow Drop children agreed with that.

When they reached the cave of Judge Rock they knocked on the side of the biggest rock of all.

"Ugh, oh, jimminy crickety, dear me, oh my," said Judge Rock. "Why are you hitting my great toe?"

"Are we hitting your great toe?" asked the Snowflake children.

"Did we hurt you?" asked one of the Snow Drop children.

"Oh, no," said Judge Rock, "the Snowflakes and Snow Drops can't hurt a tough old fellow like Judge Rock.

"I'm made of stone—hard, hard stone, you see, and nothing hurts me. I'm so solid and strong."

"That's good," said the Snowflakes and all the others.

"Won't you tell the children the story of your life?" asked Mother Snowflake.

"Oh, do," chimed in Mother Snow Drop.

"Thank you, it will give me pleasure to do so," said Judge Rock.

Then all the Snow Fairies and Snowflakes and the others settled around the cave and listened while Judge Rock told his story.

"You see," he commenced, "I am the largest rock around these parts, and for that reason I have been named Judge Rock.

"My home and myself are all one. It's so convenient not to have a separate home for one's self.

"The Cave is Me. I am the Cave. Isn't that fine?"

All the children laughed and thought Judge Rock very wonderful indeed.

"I have a great many children," said Judge Rock. "They are not so big or so strong as I am, but that is all right.

"They are called the Stones, and I have grandchildren, too," he added proudly.

"Who are they?" asked the Snowflakes.

"They are the little pebbles," said Judge Rock, "and such fine little pebbles as they all are.

"They often play with your cousins, the Sand Fairies, when Mr. Wind blows them about and when old Mother Ocean roars around the seashore."

"What a splendid family you have," said the Snow children, "and we are glad to have heard about them."

"You're welcome," said the judge, "and now you must have some of my moss soup and my snow ice cream."

So old Judge Rock gave a pretty party in his Cave, which was both his home and himself.

Not National Anthem

Alex and his dog were lying on the grass in the park listening to the band concert. The band struck into a lively air and the dog jumped up.

"Get down, Speck," Alex said, pulling him back, "that's not the 'Star-Spangled Banner.'"

Hurt All Over

Little Alice, aged three, fell down the stairs. Her mother picked her up and asked her where she was hurt.

Alice sobbingly replied, "I hurt my whole self."

Bible Table Ordered Out

After remaining in the Jerusalem chamber of Westminster abbey for fifty years, the trestle table, which had been placed there for the use of the revisers of the Bible, has been removed by the authorities. The work of the revisers was completed in 1881, but the table with its red baize remained until the order was given recently.

CHAPTER LXXVII.

IRENE was in her garden one Spring morning. In the year and a half that had passed since since the breakfast hour when Dan's telegram was brought to her, she had more and more sought comfort in her garden. Digging in a flower bed helped her to forget her trouble for a little while, at least. Feel of the damp earth gave her a sense of contact with realities, and active toil among growing plants helped to comfort her for her agonizing sense of helplessness to do anything for Tina.

Tina didn't find any comfort in gardening.

Now, as Irene plucked at weeds and grass tendrils, set out baby plants in her March garden, she lived over again swiftly that year and a half. She saw Tina's gallant little figure steading itself, her white-faced courage that refused pity or sympathy, her frozen pride that gave no confidences, took no compassion.

Irene had read her child's heart to a certain extent. She knew she was feeling that her whole world had betrayed her—even Mother. Mother might have prevented this, if she had been wise enough, resourceful enough. What were mothers for?" . . . And Irene's tears had dropped on her flower beds many a day, as she realized that she might have prevented it, if she had been quick enough, determined enough. If only she had knocked and called more insistently at Lilith's door that night—had broken down the door, if need be! For it wasn't Dan that the girl wanted—it was merely a ticket to Paris! What if Tina could know that!

And Guinn! She suffered each pang he felt, his remorse for his blunders, his blindness, his grief over Lilith's betrayal, his love that outflowed to Tina in a vain attempt to make up for years of neglect. . . .

How strange the house had seemed, empty of Lilith's music and Tina's laughter! To see, instead of Tina's arch and merry tenderness, this stricken young face in its rigidity of pride, its death agony of love. . . . In those first days Tina had made her mother think of a warrior with a mortal wound, dying on his feet, refusing aid armored in awful pride.

Who had suffered most—Guinn, or Tina, or she, the mother who bore the pangs of each?

But she thought only of the others. Guinn poured out his soul to her in self-accusations.

"If I had only known! If I had only taken your suggestion! I am to blame for the whole thing."

She had soothed him with reiterated love. "You didn't realize. Don't torture yourself over it now."

She knew how his sense of honor suffered at his child's treachery, and gradually she saw that it was a comfort to him to take all the blame on himself, for that made Lilith's betrayal less heinous.

A thousand times she asked herself, "Did I do wrong to hide the other sin from him?" Each time, she told herself, "He couldn't have borne knowing all her dishonor. It would have killed him. " I did right." Then a look at Tina's tragic face would thrust the question at her: "Did I do right to murder my own child?"

She saw, with ironic eyes, how Guinn missed Lilith, longed for her in spite of everything, couldn't reconcile himself to the thought that she was gone away to stay. She watched his face each time the postman drew near, divined its disappointment when no letter came from Lilith.

Would she ever write?

She knew what it cost him to refrain from talking of Lilith in Tina's presence, and so she let him talk of her more and more to her, when they were alone together. It seemed to take the poison out of his grief to be able to speak of her. . . . But it would not have taken the poison out of Tina's grief to speak of Lilith.

Weeks passed, and no letter, no further message came.

Irene's mind tried to fashion plans for Tina's future. The child had talent for art. If she could study in New York that would give her valuable training, fill her aching hours and give her something to plan for. . . . Yet how could she bear to think of Tina alone in New York, in that state of mind? A young girl alone in New York—after Lilith's disaster!

If only she could go with her and stay a year. But there were Guinn and the other children to think of. . . .

At last she spoke to Tina. "Darling, shouldn't you like to go on with your art now?"

Tina was standing before the window, looking out. Her figure straightened, stiffened; her hand caught the curtain. She started to speak, and then checked herself.

"Whatever you want most to do, darling, you shall do it," the mother promised.

Tina turned quickly and left the room. She would be saying there was nothing in the world she wanted to do now!

But Irene had taken her to Dallas and got drawing lessons started. Then Tina had shut herself in her room most of the time, on the pretext of drawing. The mother had suffered at each look at that closed door.

No letter came from Lilith, Irene's mind churned over all the aspects of the problem. In December she said to Guinn, "We must write to Lilith, so she can have the letters by Christmas." She tried to speak naturally.

He started, gave a wondering stare at her. "And you—you'd be willing to write to her?"

"Yes, Guinn. She's our child. And one must forgive, at Christmas time."

Tears stood in his eyes. "I've wanted to write—but it seemed like disloyalty to Tina."

"I know, I know. But the harm's done now and holding hate won't help it. Lilith needs you and you need her. I want you to write to her—but we'll not speak of it before Tina."

His face was shadowed again. "I suppose it would be exacting too much of the child to think she could forgive her sister now."

"Yes, too much."

If only he knew how much too much!

He didn't know how great Lilith's betrayal had been, but then neither could he know what desperate, mad pain had driven her to it. He thought—poor credulous father—that she had fallen in love with her sister's sweetheart and run away with him because of love for him. How wretched he would be if he could know the depths of her misery!

Irene lay awake at night haunted by fearful thoughts of what Lilith might be mad enough to do in Paris.

And Dan, poor Dan—what of him if he ever learned the truth?

If letters from home could help those children, she and Guinn must write.

And so, one morning in December, she shut herself in her room to compose the first difficult letter to Lilith. Her very pen refused to move. Her hand was cramped and no words would come. Tina's face swam between her and the paper, so that she felt her written words would stab her child afresh.

"God help us all," she breathed.

She wrote a letter to Lilith and Dan together, a letter that carried no reproaches—what good would they do now?—but only love and wishes for a happy Christmas. She begged Lilith to write to her father—"He watches for the postman every day, and longs to hear from you. God bless and keep you both."

She held the paper a long time in her hands before she sealed it. What word of hers could strengthen a girl in peril?

Next day she said to the boys, "Your father and I have written to Lilith. Do you want to send her a note in time to reach her by Christmas."

Rossiter's face darkened. "I'd see her dead first!"

Lundy gave a long, troubled sigh. "No—I think not. I can't get over the foul thing she did to Tina!"

THEATRES

"THE CLOWN"

Dorothy Revier and Jonny Walker are starred at the Grand theatre tonight in "The Clown," a romance of the big tops, of a boy of the sawdust ring who smiled and pranced in the guise of a clown with a breaking heart concealed beneath the grotesque garb of his profession. A Fox news and Universal comedy also will be shown.

COSTLY GOWNS"

Jetta Goudal and Lupe Velez can boast, if they want to, of the distinction of having worn the most expensive gowns ever shown on the screen.

The picture is D. W. Griffith's "Lady of the Pavements," which is at the Cliftona theatre, and the cost of the gowns is estimated exactly at $13,500, with accessories totaling $4,650—not a cent of this was in stage money.

Miss Goudal's dresses cost $7500 to make and are certainly the most distinctive creations ever screened. Jewelry amounting to $2000, stockings and accessories costing $400 and shoes valued at $250 completed her wardrobe.

Miss Velez, who appears in ballet costumes during the early sequences of the picture, wears gowns costing $6,000 with jewelry stockings and shoes valued at $2,000.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN"

When you hear the Calliope Wednesday, May 1, you will know Tad's big Uncle Tom's Cabin show is in town, don't forget the day and date.

Louvain University

The restoration of the University of Louvain was brought about by the various nations of the allies. To the United States fell the privilege of rebuilding the library. The University of Louvain was founded more than two centuries before Harvard. At the time of its destruction the library contained but a quarter of a million volumes, but these works had been accumulating for five centuries. The site of the present library is the finest in all Louvain, occupying one entire side of the Place du Peuple. The architect was Whitney Warren, who was chosen by an international committee. The corner stone was laid by Nicholas Murray Butler.

then crashed into the front of a drug store on the north side, shattering the large plate glass display window. Those injnured are Mrs. Della Faber, 48, and Tillie Coppler, 27.

ELKHART, Ind., April 29—Five persons are dead today, a sixth probably will not survive and ten others are nursing injuries as a result of a collision between their automobile and a Chicago-Detroit motor bus near here.

Dead: Mrs. Ural Mabie, 41; Miss Vaughn Mabie, 19; Charles Mabie Jr., 17; Ruth Mabie, 14; and Daniel Papa, 20, all of Elkhart. Ruby, Ruth's twin sister, is in a grave condition.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 29 Nine persons, all but one of a family to ten, are dead today and another so seriously injured he may die, as the result of a train-auto crash at a grade crossing near here last night.

The dead:

Antonio Bianchi, 42, his wife, Rose, 32 and their children, Lucy, 16; Marion, 14; George, 8; Louise, 6, Antoinette, 3 and Helen, 8 months,

Frank Bianchi, 12, another child, was in a serious condition at Horton memorial hospital today where attaches said he may recover.

The elder Bianchi was driving a new sedan through New Hampton, four miles east of here, and slowed down to a halt for an eastbound freight train at the Erie crossing.

As the last car of the freight rumbled over the crossing, Bianchi threw his automobile in gear and drove directly into the path of the speeding westbound Jersey City-Chicago express.

On the Safe Side

There are so many "unsafe" things around a home. If a mother will think of such things, serious injury is spared the baby at its investigating age. She can teach the older children to co-operate with her in keeping sharp objects, such as pencils, scissors and knives from the baby's grasp. Medicines and matches may be kept on a high shelf, and while cooking, the handles of pans should not be left in such a position that baby can grab at them and spill the hot liquid. Eternal watchfulness is the price of safety.

ADOZEN different things may cause a headache, but there's just one thing you need ever do to get relief. Bayer Aspirin is an absolute antidote for such pain. Keep it at the office. Have it handy in the home. Those subject to frequent or sudden headaches should carry Bayer Aspirin in the pocket tin. Until you have used it for headaches, colds, neuralgia, etc., you've no idea how Bayer Aspirin can help. It means quick, complete relief to millions of men and women who use it every year. And it does not depress the heart.

Are YOU a Good Neighbor?

To what important extent are you joining forces with those who are doing their best to make this a more beautiful, a more livable town in which to live? Every home on every individual street has a real responsibility. Just as one rotten apple can eventually spoil the entire barrel, just so one run-down place can spoil the looks of a street. The well-kept house, next door, is in bad company. Be a good neighbor, a neighbor with real civic pride. If your house needs painting, paint it. ## BIBLE THOUGHT

SUBMISSION TO GOD—I will bear the indignation of the Lord, because I have sinned against him, until he plead my cause, and execute judgement for me: He will bring me forth to the light, and I shall behold his righteousness.—Micah 7:9.

PRAYER—"O speak to reassure me, Thou Guardian of my soul."

ITALY WILL ARM

Says Premier Mussolini, speaking through his king:

"Conferences on disarmament have followed one another these last years. Noble projects have been tried, politicians and experts have met. But disarmament has remained until today only a generous hope contradicted by continual armaments in land, sea and air.

"As attempts so far tried have had no success, it is the duty of the state from now on to take measures for defense, to render the mother country powerful and therefore respected."

So Italy proposes to go ahead and build up a stronger armament. Mussolini can do it. He has an all-Fascist parliament. He holds the king in the hollow of his hand. The nation is bewitched and bulldozed.

What Italy will do with a bigger army and navy when she has them, Mussolini only knows. But Europe fears.

Other powers will arm further, if this senseless postponement of disarmament continues. Then there will be another World War.

And all because statesmen representing the civil powers and peaceful ideals of the nations will not go ahead and do what they know they should do, instead of leaving armament decisions to militarists and navalist—professional fighting men who naturally want all the fighting equipment they can get.

SMALLER MONEY

In a couple of months the governments new paper money will be in circulation. Billions of dollars will be wholesaled through the Federal Reserve banks and retailed through all the banks in their districts. Then they will replace the old money in the vaults, and dribble into circulation. As rapidly as the old banknotes now outstanding gravitate to the banks, they will be retired. In a few months we should be on a new currency basis.

The new bills are distinguishable mainly by their size. They are only two-thirds as large as the present paper money. Thus they conform to the bank notes of England and various other foreign countries—which to Americans have never looked like money. Fortunately the rich engraving and familiar portraits will make our new bank notes easily recognizable as currency, though some conservative souls may mistrust them at first.

Next, when will bank checks be reduced in size, and standardized?

Modern Canned Foods

Chemical preservatives are entirely unnecessary in canned foods if they are properly sterilized, and furthermore the addition of injurious preservatives or other substances to any food is prohibited by law. The preservation of canned foods is accomplished entirely through sterilization by heat, and sealing the product in an air-tight container. Artificial colors were formerly used in a few red fruits, but have been discontinued since the canners are now able to retain the natural color of the fruits without them.

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

A CAVE PARTY

Isn't it strange," said the grown-ups, "that the mountain top, over yonder, is covered with snow, but that very little is coming down here?

"Now and again just a few flakes come down, but along the mountain top there is a long ridge of snow."

Of course that was because old King Snow had not come out. The snowflakes that fell to the earth were some of the trimmings of the little dresses and suits worn by the Snowflake children which fell as they walked and played.

Most of them fell off as they were walking along on the mountain top, and only a few fell way down to the earth below the mountain.

They walked and walked until they reached a cave at the top of the mountain.

"Here is the cave owned by Judge Rock," said Mother Snow Drop.

"Is he a friend of ours?" asked the Snow Drop children.

"Ah," said Mother Snowflake, "we old mothers know so many more people than the children.

"That's because we've been around so much more," and the

"I'm So Solid and Strong."

Snowflake and Snow Drop children agreed with that.

When they reached the cave of Judge Rock they knocked on the side of the biggest rock of all.

"Ugh, oh, jimminy crickety, dear me, oh my," said Judge Rock. "Why are you hitting my great toe?"

"Are we hitting your great toe?" asked the Snowflake children.

"Did we hurt you?" asked one of the Snow Drop children.

"Oh, no," said Judge Rock, "the Snowflakes and Snow Drops can't hurt a tough old fellow like Judge Rock.

"I'm made of stone—hard, hard stone, you see, and nothing hurts me. I'm so solid and strong."

"That's good," said the Snowflakes and all the others.

"Won't you tell the children the story of your life?" asked Mother Snowflake.

"Oh, do," chimed in Mother Snow Drop.

"Thank you, it will give me pleasure to do so," said Judge Rock.

Then all the Snow Fairies and Snowflakes and the others settled around the cave and listened while Judge Rock told his story.

"You see," he commenced, "I am the largest rock around these parts, and for that reason I have been named Judge Rock.

"My home and myself are all one. It's so convenient not to have a separate home for one's self.

"The Cave is Me. I am the Cave. Isn't that fine?"

All the children laughed and thought Judge Rock very wonderful indeed.

"I have a great many children," said Judge Rock. "They are not so big or so strong as I am, but that is all right.

"They are called the Stones, and I have grandchildren, too," he added proudly.

"Who are they?" asked the Snowflakes.

"They are the little pebbles," said Judge Rock, "and such fine little pebbles as they all are.

"They often play with your cousins, the Sand Fairies, when Mr. Wind blows them about and when old Mother Ocean roars around the seashore."

"What a splendid family you have," said the Snow children, "and we are glad to have heard about them."

"You're welcome," said the judge, "and now you must have some of my moss soup and my snow ice cream."

So old Judge Rock gave a pretty party in his Cave, which was both his home and himself.

CHAPTER LXXVII.

IRENE was in her garden one Spring morning. In the year and a half that had passed since the breakfast hour when Dan's telegram was brought to her, she had more and more sought comfort in her garden. Digging in a flower bed helped her to forget her trouble for a little while, at least. Feel of the damp earth gave her a sense of contact with realities, and active toil among growing plants helped to comfort her for her agonizing sense of helplessness to do anything for Tina.

Tina didn't find any comfort in gardening.

Now, as Irene plucked at weeds and grass tendrils, set out baby plants in her March garden, she lived over again swiftly that year and a half. She saw Tina's gallant little figure steading itself, her white-faced courage that refused pity or sympathy, her frozen pride that gave no confidences, took no compassion.

Irene had read her child's heart to a certain extent. She knew she was feeling that her whole world had betrayed her—even Mother. Mother might have prevented this, if she had been wise enough, resourceful enough. What were mothers for?" . . . And Irene's tears had dropped on her flower beds many a day, as she realized that she might have prevented it, if she had been quick enough, determined enough. If only she had knocked and called more insistently at Lilith's door that night—had broken down the door, if need be! For it wasn't Dan that the girl wanted—it was merely a ticket to Paris! What if Tina could know that!

And Guinn! She suffered each pang he felt, his remorse for his blunders, his blindness, his grief over Lilith's betrayal, his love that outflowed to Tina in a vain attempt to make up for years of neglect. . .

How strange the house had seemed, empty of Lilith's music and Tina's laughter! To see, instead of Tina's arch and merry tenderness, this stricken young face in its rigidity of pride, its death agony of love. . . . In those first days Tina had made her mother think of a warrior with a mortal wound, dying on his feet, refusing aid armored in awful pride.

Who had suffered most—Guinn, or Tina, or she, the mother who bore the pangs of each?

But she thought only of the others. Guinn poured out his soul to her in self-accusations.

"If I had only known! If I had only taken your suggestion! I am to blame for the whole thing."

She had soothed him with reiterated love. "You didn't realize. Don't torture yourself over it now."

She knew how his sense of honor suffered at his child's treachery, and gradually she saw that it was a comfort to him to take all the blame on himself, for that made Lilith's betrayal less heinous.

A thousand times she asked herself, "Did I do wrong to hide the other sin from him?" Each time, she told herself, "He couldn't have borne knowing all her dishonor. It would have killed him. " I did right." Then a look at Tina's tragic face would thrust the question at her: "Did I do right to murder my own child?"

She saw, with ironic eyes, how Guinn missed Lilith, longed for her in spite of everything, couldn't reconcile himself to the thought that she was gone away to stay. She watched his face each time the postman drew near, divined its disappointment when no letter came from Lilith.

Would she ever write?

She knew what it cost him to refrain from talking of Lilith in Tina's presence, and so she let him talk of her more and more to her, when they were alone together. It seemed to take the poison out of his grief to be able to speak of her. . . . But it would not have taken the poison out of Tina's grief to speak of Lilith.

Weeks passed, and no letter, no further message came.

Irene's mind tried to fashion plans for Tina's future. The child had talent for art. If she could study in New York that would give her valuable training, fill her aching hours and give her something to plan for. . . . Yet how could she bear to think of Tina alone in New York, in that state of mind? A young girl alone in New York—after Lilith's disaster!

If only she could go with her and stay a year. But there were Guinn and the other children to think of. . . .

At last she spoke to Tina. "Darling, shouldn't you like to go on with your art now?"

Tina was standing before the window, looking out. Her figure straightened, stiffened; her hand caught the curtain. She started to speak, and then checked herself.

"Whatever you want most to do, darling, you shall do it," the mother promised.

Tina turned quickly and left the room. She would be saying there was nothing in the world she wanted to do now!

But Irene had taken her to Dallas and got drawing lessons started. Then Tina had shut herself in her room most of the time, on the pretext of drawing. The mother had suffered at each look at that closed door.

No letter came from Lilith, Irene's mind churned over all the aspects of the problem. In December she said to Guinn, "We must write to Lilith, so she can have the letters by Christmas." She tried to speak naturally

He started, gave a wondering stare at her. "And you—you'd be willing to write to her?"

"Yes, Guinn. She's our child. And one must forgive, at Christmas time."

Tears stood in his eyes. "I've wanted to write—but it seemed like disloyalty to Tina."

"I know, I know. But the harm's done now and holding hate won't help it. Lilith needs you and you need her. I want you to write to her—but we'll not speak of it before Tina."

His face was shadowed again. "I suppose it would be exacting too much of the child to think she could forgive her sister now."

"Yes, too much."

If only he knew how much too much!

He didn't know how great Lilith's betrayal had been, but then neither could he know what desperate, mad pain had driven her to it. He thought—poor credulous father—that she had fallen in love with her sister's sweetheart and run away with him because of love for him. How wretched he would be if he could know the depths of her misery!

Irene lay awake at night haunted by fearful thoughts of what Lilith might be mad enough to do in Paris.

And Dan, poor Dan—what of him if he ever learned the truth?

If letters from home could help those children, she and Guinn must write.

And so, one morning in December, she shut herself in her room to compose the first difficult letter to Lilith. Her very pen refused to move. Her hand was cramped and no words would come. Tina's face swam between her and the paper, so that she felt her written words would stab her child afresh.

"God help us all," she breathed.

She wrote a letter to Lilith and Dan together, a letter that carried no reproaches—what good would they do now?—but only love and wishes for a happy Christmas. She begged Lilith to write to her father—"He watches for the postman every day, and longs to hear from you. God bless and keep you both."

She held the paper a long time in her hands before she sealed it. What word of hers could strengthen a girl in peril?

Next day she said to the boys, "Your father and I have written to Lilith. Do you want to send her a note in time to reach her by Christmas."

Rossiter's face darkened. "I'd see her dead first!"

Lundy gave a long, troubled sigh. "No—I think not. I can't get over the foul thing she did to Tina!"

THEATRES

"THE CLOWN"

Dorothy Revier and Jonny Walker are starred at the Grand theatre tonight in "The Clown," a romance of the big tops, of a boy of the sawdust ring who smiled and pranced in the guise of a clown with a breaking heart concealed beneath the grotesque garb of his profession. A Fox news and Universal comedy also will be shown.

COSTLY GOWNS"

Jetta Goudal and Lupe Velez can boast, if they want to, of the distinction of having worn the most expensive gowns ever shown on the screen.

The picture is D. W. Griffith's "Lady of the Pavements" which is at the Cliftona theatre and the cost of the gowns is estimated exactly at $13,500, with accessories totaling $4,650—not a cent of this was in stage money.

Miss Goudal's dresses cost $7500 to make and are certainly the most distinctive creations ever screened. Jewelry amounting to $2000, stockings and accessories costing $400 and shoes valued at $250 completed her wardrobe.

Miss Velez, who appears in ballet costumes during the early sequences of the picture, wears gowns costing $6,000 with jewelry stockings and shoes valued at $2,000.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN"

When you hear the Calliope Wednesday, May 1, you will know Tad's big Uncle Tom's Cabin show is in town, don't forget the day and date.

Louvain University

The restoration of the University of Louvain was brought about by the various nations of the allies. To the United States fell the privilege of rebuilding the library. The University of Louvain was founded more than two centuries before Harrard. At the time of its destruction the library contained but a quarter of a million volumes, but these works had been accumulating for five centuries. The site of the present library is the finest in all Louvain, occupying one entire side of the Place du Peuple. The architect was Whitney Warren, who was chosen by an international committee. The corner stone was laid by Nicholas Murray Butler.

then crashed into the front of a drug store on the north side, shattering the large plate glass display window. Those injnured are Mrs. Della Faber, 48, and Tillie Coppler, 27.

ELKHART, Ind., April 29—Five persons are dead today, a sixth probably will not survive and ten others are nursing injuries as a result of a collision between their automobile and a Chicago-Detroit motor bus near here.

Dead: Mrs. Ural Mabie, 41; Miss Vaughn Mabie, 19; Charles Mabie Jr., 17; Ruth Mabie, 14; and Daniel Papa, 20, all of Elkhart. Ruby, Ruth's twin sister, is in a grave condition.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 29 Nine persons, all but one of a family to ten, are dead today and another so seriously injured he may die, as the result of a train-auto crash at a grade crossing near here last night.

The dead:

Antonio Bianchi, 42, his wife, Rose, 32 and their children, Lucy, 16, Marion, 14; George, 8; Louise, 6, Antoinette, 3 and Helen, 8 months,

Frank Bianchi, 12, another child, was in a serious condition at Horton memorial hospital today where attaches said he may recover.

The elder Bianchi was driving a new sedan through New Hampton, four miles east of here, and slowed down to a halt for an eastbound freight train at the Erie crossing.

As the last car of the freight rumbled over the crossing, Bianchi threw his automobile in gear and drove directly into the path of the speeding westbound Jersey City-Chicago express.

On the Safe Side

There are so many "unsafe" things around a home. If a mother will think of such things, serious injury is spared the baby at its investigating age. She can teach the older children to co-operate with her in keeping sharp objects, such as pencils, scissors and knives from the baby's grasp. Medicines and matches may be kept on a high shelf, and while cooking, the handles of pans should not be left in such a position that baby can grab at them and spill the hot liquid. Eternal watchfulness is the price of safety.

A DOZEN different things may cause a headache, but there's just one thing you need ever do to get relief. Bayer Aspirin is an absolute antidote for such pain. Keep it at the office. Have it handy in the home. Those subject to frequent or sudden headaches should carry Bayer Aspirin in the pocket tin. Until you have used it for headaches, colds, neuralgia, etc., you've no idea how Bayer Aspirin can help. It means quick, complete relief to millions of men and women who use it every year. And it does not depress the heart.

"I GAINED TWENTY POUNDS," HE SAYS IN EIGHT WEEKS

Famous Konjola Went To Source of Ailments—Lauds New Medicine.

MR. STEVE SOBERDASH.

"After suffering for two years from stomach trouble, Konjola quickly and surely restored my health so that I feel like a different person," said Mr. Steve Soberdash, 1622 Florence avenue, Youngstown.

"When I was nineteen years old I was extremely weak and lacking in strength and energy. I was unable to eat a meal without suffering intensely afterward from pains. This killed my appetite and I ate but very little. Still I suffered from gas bloating and acidity of my stomach. I experienced vomiting spells quite often.

"A friend recommended Konjola, and on his indorsement I decided to give it a trial. All my ailments vanished within eight weeks and have never returned. I have gained weight and am strong as any other young man. I eat whatever is placed before me, relish the food and am properly nourished. It is indeed a wonderful thing to be free of two years' suffering, and I owe it all to Konjola. To me there can never be any other medium like Konjola."

Konjola is sold in Circleville, Ohio, by Hamilton & Ryan's drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

DIET VARIED DAILY IS ESSENTIAL TO HEALTH

Human Body Is Like a Machine, Says Dr. Copeland, Each Part Requiring a Certain "Fuel"—Lack of Iodine Foods May Lead to Goiter.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

IT is unfortunate that many persons fill their stomachs, satisfy their hunger and grow fat perhaps, but still are neglecting to get all the food they really need. Far too often we act as if quantity were the only factor to be considered.

Let us think about this for a moment. What would you think of the owner of an automobile who never bought oil for his car, but stopped at the filling station twice a day to get gasoline? You know the machine would rebel very quickly.

Perhaps you remonstrate with him and, to "even things up," he quits buying gasoline, but fills the oil tank two or three times a day. Of course, the car won't run long.

The fact is that there must be a proper proportion of oil and gasoline. Both are essential to the continued operation of the car. It is necessary, too, to add water to the batteries. There must be some of this, that and the other and enough of each of the essentials.

If it is true of a mechanical device that it must have just the right quantity of several "foods," it is plain that the human machine must have an unfailing supply of every single food that each individual cell and fibre and organ requires. Without such a supply there will be trouble. Sooner or later there will be uncomfortable symptoms.

Perhaps I can illustrate what I have in mind by speaking about goiter. You know what that is—"thick neck," it is sometimes called.

In the neck, on each side of the "Adam's apple," are the parts of what is called the "thyroid gland." When this gets out of order, there may be enlargement of the organ and disturbance in the normal generation of its juices. Since this secretion has an important part to play in mental and physical activity, unless this organ operates normally, the afflicted individual is in danger.

It has been found that the absence of iodine may produce goiter. If we do not take the foods which carry iodine and get that element in sufficient quantity, the trouble develops.

It is interesting that in countries or localities remote from the sea, goiter is much more likely to occur. This fact drew attention to the use of fish as a possible means of escaping the disease. A chemical analysis of several varieties of fish revealed that iodine is found in sea fish and not in fish from fresh water.

Then tests were made to find out if canning or preserving the fish altered the iodine content. This was important, because it is not easy, even with modern methods of refrigeration, to get salt water fish to these sections where goiter is prevalent.

It was found, fortunately, that the preservative processes do not destroy the iodine. Among the sources of iodine supply, therefore we have in the eating of sea fish, one way to help overcome the dangers of goiter.

The Verdict

A prominent physician who has a grand oratorical style is generally known by his Christian name, which happens to be Charles.

One day he rose before a crowded meeting and in a forceful and solemn tone began his speech as follows:

"Heaven is my witness, and you my fellow countrymen, are the jury."

Here came an oratorical pause and then the silence was suddenly broken by a high-pitched voice ringing down from the gallery:

"You're guilty, Charlie!"—London Answers.

Valuable "Accidents"

Scientific discoveries are often accidental. They are usually made by men trained in the line of scientific invention or observation. Oxygen, discovered by Priestly; calcium carbide, by Willson; vulcanization, by Goodyear; X-rays, by Roentgen, and radio-activity, by Becherel, fall in this class.

Sand Used as Defense

The expression "Throwing sand in their eyes" is said to have had its origin in southern Siberia, where the tribes depend for safety largely on the fleetness of their horses. The land is very sandy and the method of repulsing an opponent was by means of a handful of sand tossed at him, with the result, if the aim was good, of at least temporarily bewilderment and blindness.

THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH

In 1513 Ponce de Leon, an old Spanish soldier was thrilled by the marvelous story of a fountain of youth. Immediately he started out with two ships toward the Bahamas and finally landed on what is now Florida. To the left is shown De Leon about to bathe in what he thought was his fountain of youth, only to realize later that the story was a myth.

Rise From Poverty to Princely Wealth Meteoric

SAMUEL ROSOFF

A HORATIO ALGER hero never had a more adventurous career than that of Samuel Rosoff, prominent subway contractor.

Sammy first sighted the Statue of Liberty as a steerage passenger when he came here from Russia at the tender age of eleven. He didn't experience the customary thrill, though, because he'd had a tough trip on his first long sea voyage, what with white-caps and too many steerage victuals that didn't just set right.

Once on dry land bur young adventurer wasn't much better off. In fact, he had to admit that plenty of poor food was better than none.

Then followed long and dreary months of hunger, cold and illness. 'til Sammy began to wonder if, after all, the water wasn't a pretty good place to go back to—but not on a boat this time.

Soon, however, Sammy scouted around and found some friends. So many of them seemed to be engaged in an enterprise which consisted of standing on a street corner with a bundle of newspapers under their arms and yelling "Wuxtra! Wuxtra! All about the big molder!" Sammy wondered if that wasn't a pretty good idea, and lost no time in getting himself similarly "connected."

It's a far cry from selling newspapers to subway contracting. But Samuel Rosoff did it, by the sweat of his blood, and today is a man of fabulous wealth. He hasn't by any means forgotten what it took to get there, either, and is now realizing the ambition of a lifetime.

With his two grown sons, fine strapping lads, this financier has sailed for the land of his birth, with a view to contracting for a $2,000,000 subway in Russia, the first underground to be erected there. When he achieves this he will have conquered his two greatest desires —to serve both his birthplace and his beloved America.

World Religious News

The churches of America have given $20,000,000 to charity since the World war.

The Temporary Slavery commission of the League of Nations reports that there are in Europe, Asia and Africa 19 areas where slave trading and slave markets exist.

Pope Pius has called a conference for 1930 which will include all cardinals, archbishops and bishops from the ends of the earth as well as many lesser clergy. There will be no laymen included.

The general council of the Presbyterian Church in the United States voted to submit to the general assembly meeting in St. Paul next month an overture to amend the form of government so as to give women entire equality with men, giving them a right to sit in the courts of the church, have memberships in the synods and general assembly, become elders and clergy.

President Daniel L. Marsh of Boston University announces the appointment of Henry H. Meyer as Dean of Boston University School of Religious Education and Social Service succeeding Walter S. Athearn, who will resign June 30th. Dr. Atnearn will do research work in Europe, Asia and Africa until that date in his capacity as chairman of the World Federation of Educational Associations.

The American University, Washington, D. C., has announced a seminar to Palestine for the coming summer under the leadership of Dr. Arthur J. Jackson, director of the department of religion at the university. Theological students, ministers and interested laymen will have an opportunity to study the sermon on the Mount and the temptation experience on their traditional scenes, at Corinth the history of Paul's life there, and at Athens Paul's Mars Hill sermon will be studied on Mars Hill.

Bluffed Intruder

Confronted by a housebreaker while he was lying in bed, John Stone, thirteen, son of Mr. and Mrs John Stone of Gardiner, Maine, did not crawl under the sheets and whimper, but instead called out to the man who had flashed a light on the bed. "What's the big idea?" "I was sent here," replied the intruder; then he turned and left the house as he had entered it.—Exchange.

The Search continues

—and Willie has appointed himself official bottle searcher. We don't know why milk bottles should be carried into the parlor —but then that is Willie's business.

He insists he is looking for lost milk bottles, and we only wish a few more of our customers would be so industrious.

Our milk is delivered in clean, sanitary bottles. We do this to safe-guard your health. If these bottles are not all returned it means we must buy new ones—and bottles cost 6c each. We could peddle the milk in the old can and ladle way but we won't. We prefer to take a loss and give good clean, sanitary service.

However, we feel sure that once the situation is presented to you there will be fewer lost bottles. It does not take much energy to set out an empty bottle, try it and see how easy it is. While in the mood, please search the house and see if you can't find some more. Willie says it's very educational. You can take his word because he is a professional searcher. Valuable "Accidents"

Scientific discoveries are often accidental. They are usually made by men trained in the line of scientific invention or observation. Oxygen, discovered by Priestly; calcium carbide, by Willson; vulcanization, by Goodyear; X-rays, by Roentgen, and radio-activity, by Becherel, fall in this class.

Sand Used as Defense

The expression "Throwing sand in their eyes" is said to have had its origin in southern Siberia, where the tribes depend for safety largely on the fleetness of their horses. The land is very sandy and the method of repulsing an opponent was by means of a handful of sand tossed at him, with the result. If the aim was good, of at least temporarily bewilderment and blindness.

Rise From Poverty to Princely Wealth Meteoric

SAMUEL ROSOFF

A HORATIO ALGER hero never had a more adventurous career than that of Samuel Rosoff, prominent subway contractor.

Sammy first sighted the Statue of Liberty as a steerage passenger when he came here from Russia at the tender age of eleven. He didn't experience the customary thrill, though, because he'd had a tough trip on his first long sea voyage, what with white-caps and too many steerage victuals that didn't just set right.

Once on dry land our young adventurer wasn't much better off. In fact, he had to admit that plenty of poor food was better than none.

Then followed long and dreary months of hunger, cold and illness. 'til Sammy began to wonder if, after all, the water wasn't a pretty good place to go back to—but not on a boat this time.

Soon, however, Sammy scouted around and found some friends. So many of them seemed to be engaged in an enterprise which consisted of standing on a street corner with a bundle of newspapers under their arms and yelling "Wuxtra! Wuxtra! All about the big moider!" Sammy wondered if that wasn't a pretty good idea, and lost no time in getting himself similarly "connected."

It's a far cry from selling newspapers to subway contracting. But Samuel Rosoff did it, by the sweat of his blood, and today is a man of fabulous wealth. He hasn't by any means forgotten what it took to get there, either, and is now realizing the ambition of a lifetime.

With his two grown sons, fine strapping lads, this financier has sailed for the land of his birth, with a view to contracting for a $2,000,000 subway in Russia, the first underground to be erected there. When he achieves this he will have conquered his two greatest desires—to serve both his birthplace and his beloved America.

World Religious News

The churches of America have given $20,000,000 to charity since the World war.

The Temporary Slavery commission of the League of Nations reports that there are in Europe, Asia and Africa 19 areas where slave trading and slave markets exist.

Pope Pius has called a conference for 1930 which will include all cardinals, archbishops and bishops from the ends of the earth as well as many lesser clergy. There will be no laymen included.

The general council of the Presbyterian Church in the United States voted to submit to the general assembly meeting in St. Paul next month an overture to amend the form of government so as to give women entire equality with men, giving them a right to sit in the courts of the church, have memberships in the synods and general assembly, become elders and clergy.

President Daniel L. Marsh of Boston University announces the appointment of Henry H. Meyer as Dean of Boston University School of Religious Education and Social Service succeeding Walter S. Athearn, who will resign June 30th. Dr. Atnearn will do research work in Europe, Asia and Africa until that date in his capacity as chairman of the World Federation of Educational Associations.

The American University, Washington, D. C., has announced a seminar to Palestine for the coming summer under the leadership of Dr. Arthur J. Jackson, director of the department of religion at the university. Theological students, ministers and interested laymen will have an opportunity to study the sermon on the Mount and the temptation experience on their traditional scenes, at Corinth the history of Paul's life there, and at Athens Paul's Mars Hill sermon will be studied on Mars Hill.

Bluffed Intruder

Confronted by a housebreaker while he was lying in bed, John Stone, thirteen son of Mr. and Mrs John Stone of Gardiner, Maine, did not crawl under the sheets and whimper, but instead called out to the man who had flashed a light on the bed, "What's the big idea?" "I was sent here," replied the intruder; then he turned and left the house as he had entered it.—Exchange.

THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH

In 1513 Ponce de Leon, an old Spanish soldier was thrilled by the marvelous story of a fountain of youth. Immediately he started out with two ships toward the Bahamas, and finally landed in what is now Florida. To the left is shown De Leon about to bathe in what he thought was his fountain of youth, only to realize later that the story was a myth.

What's the Use?

Another pathetic little feature of everyday life is the way people will look forward for years to the nice things they are going to do when the children are grown up and away and then find, when the time comes, that they don't care much about doing them, after all.—Ohio State Journal

The Search continues

—and Willie has appointed himself official bottle searcher. We don't know why milk bottles should be carried into the parlor—but then that is Willie's business.

He insists he is looking for lost milk bottles, and we only wish a few more of our customers would be so industrious.

Our milk is delivered in clean, sanitary bottles. We do this to safe-guard your health. If these bottles are not all returned it means we must buy new ones—and bottles cost 6c each. We could peddle the milk in the old can and ladle way but we won't. We prefer to take a loss and give good clean, sanitary service.

However, we feel sure that once the situation is presented to you there will be fewer lost bottles. It does not take much energy to set out an empty bottle, try it and see how easy it is. While in the mood, please search the house and see if you can't find some more. Willie says it's very educational. You can take his word because he is a professional searcher. How many can you find and set out for us tomorrow?
